Test Drillings Being Made On Stone Jug Farm Bought Recently
In Mysterious, Large Scale Deal

The mystery of the large scale land buying in the Stone Jug and other areas moved a step—but only a step—closer to solution today.

That whoever is purchasing the land, at prices ranging up to hundreds of dollars per acre, is interested in what is underneath the top soil seems indicated by the fact that drilling for core samples of the earth is being carried out.

Employees of Sprague and Henwood, Inc., of Scranton, have set up a drill on the former Herbert W. Kerr farm, at Stone Jug, one of the first farms purchased by Attorney Franklin R. Bigham for an unnamed buyer in the mass-scale farm purchasing.

Cores of rock and minerals, some 15 feet in length, are being removed and placed in wooden boxes designed to hold the long thin cores which resemble an enlarged graphite center of a lead pencil.

Won't Answer Questions
Some of the cores are dark in color, others are of a sort of granite or marble color.

Workmen at the rig doing the drilling refused to answer questions concerning the work, other than to note what could be seen on the canvas cover over the drill—that it was owned by Sprague and Henwood, Inc., of Scranton. When queried concerning who was having the drilling done, they answered that the name was plainly written.

The drill men, who are residing in cabins, along the Harrisburg road, according to residents of the Stone Jug area, refused to give their names, and according to residents of the area have discouraged too much observation or questioning.

"A Drop In The Bucket"

Mr. Kerr, who plans to move off his farm this fall, after the harvest, had already plowed the field in which the drill has been placed. The motor-driven drill is of the type that can extend into the earth for a distance of about 3,000 feet. Judging by the metal pipe about the rig, the drill was about 200 feet into the earth on about a 40 degree angle at present.

While it is not known whether the land purchases have been completed as yet or not, a rough check of recent farms recorded as sold, reveals that at least 12 farms, with approximately 1,000 acres of land in them have already been purchased at a price of $173,750. The farms are chiefly in Straban, Butler, Reading and Latimore townships.

C. A. Heiges, who has purchased many of the farms for Mr. Bigham, said today the dozen farms covered in today's check represented "only a drop in the bucket" compared with total land purchases for the unidentified buyer. He said exact figures on the number of farms and acreages would require an extensive check of his records and could not be made available for several days.

150th Anniversary Of Adams
County Court To Be Observed

The 150th anniversary of the first court held in Adams county will be observed in county court Monday by the County Bar association.

The program at the court house is open to the public. Attorney Donald P. McPherson said, in urging as many as possible to be present in court at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

One hundred and fifty years ago, on the second Monday in June, the first court was held in the then six-month-old county of Adams. The court took place in James Gettys tavern, located east and north of where the Gettysburg National bank is now.

All living associate judges—E. P. Miller, C. W. Johnson, J. Price Oyler, John C. Bream and H. B. Pearson—will be special guests for the program.

Attorney McPherson will describe the historical details of the occasion and Attorney Donald M. Swope will present to the court the list of judicial districts in which Adams county has been located.

Attorney Edward B. Bulleit will present a list of the president judges of the Adams county court. Attorney Eugene R. Hartman, a list of associate judges, Attorney Eugene V. Bulleit, a list of members of the bar and District Attorney Daniel E. Teeter, a list of the district attorneys. Each will speak briefly in making presentation of the lists.

The 150th anniversary observance will precede naturalization court at which four residents of the county of foreign extraction will become citizens of the United States. The four will be present for the 150th anniversary program and it is expected that the naturalization program will tie into the observance.

Cases scheduled for the session of court Monday include an appeal by Orrington Brown, Hanover R. 3, from suspension of his operator's license and a number of desertion and non-support hearings.

FBI Director Says Reds Can Sabotage Essential Plants

Washington, June 9 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover has told Congress that U. S. Communists are going underground, and that there are more subversive activities in this country than "at any period during the last world war."

"Communism today is at a greater height in the United States than either Nazism or Fascism was" during World War II, the FBI director said. What's more, he added, it is centered in strategic areas and in strategic industries. In testimony before a Congressional committee, Hoover said:

"Forty-eight per cent of the membership of the Communist party is in the basic industry of this country. In this manner they would be able to sabotage essential industry in vital defense areas in the event of a national emergency.

"Our investigations disclose that Communist activities are most pronounced in such strategic industrial areas as New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California and Michigan."

"Communist efforts toward infiltration have been intensified in basic industries vital to our security such as steel, heavy machinery, mining, communications, transportation, the electrical industry and the maritime industry."

Hoover's statements were made to a Senate appropriations sub-committee in testimony released last night.

CHURCH SCHOOL
"RECOGNITION"
DAY IS PLANNED

Children's Day will become Church School Recognition Sunday in the Gettysburg Presbyterian church when children and young people of all ages will take part in the morning worship service, Sunday.

Near the close of the service, the congregation will adjourn to the adjoining church school building for a "visitation tour" of the various departments of the school. Parents particularly are invited to visit the departments in which their children are students so that they may talk with the teachers, see displays of work accomplished and inspect the progress made with the re-decoration program of the church school building.

Boys To Be Ushers

Members of the Junior high school boys' class will serve as ushers for the regular morning service which will begin at 10:45 o'clock, the usual hour. After the organ prelude and the singing of the hymn "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing," by the school and congregation, the prayer of adoration and confession will be given with the members of the Primary department leading.

A canticle of praise, "Praise Him, Praise Him," will be sung by the church school and congregation. The young people's choir will lead in the responsive reading of the psalter and there will be a choral response by nursery children.

The Young People's choir will sing the anthem, "A Song of God's Saints," by Hopkins, and Old and New Testament scripture selections will be read by Barbara Witherow and Garry Beidler. Prayers of thanksgiving, petition and intercession will be given by members of the Primary and Junior departments followed by the Lord's prayer. After a hymn, the offertory will be "Jesus Loves Me" and the pastor, the Rev. Clyde R. Brown, will deliver a sermon on "Our Church School." The formal part of the service in the church will close with poems and songs by the Kindergarten department after which the congregation will adjourn to the church school building.

CANCER SOCIETY
RENEWS APPEAL

The Adams county unit of the American Cancer society today issued another appeal for donations. So far the organization has secured $2,800 of its $3,000 goal, John A. Hauser, president of the unit, said.

Noting its appeal as a last-minute effort to reach the quota, Hauser said that "It is extremely important that we reach our goal. The money raised in the county is spent in several ways. Some is retained here for use in the tumor clinic at the hospital and to handle expenses that may rise in aiding individual cancer sufferers. But the most important work done by the county group is raising funds for use in the nation-wide effort to wipe out cancer. While a few hundred dollars may seem to make little difference, it might mean the difference between finding the cause of cancer and not finding it. The difference between one experiment that can be carried on with that $200, and the dropping of that particular try because there is no money available for it, may mean the difference between life and death to hundreds of people. It would be a gamble, but one we cannot afford to take, to let the drive stop short of its goal this year."

Those who wish to make donations should send checks either to Hauser at Biglerville or to the fund chairman, Mrs. Joseph E. Codori, York street.

Colony Of Beetle
Enemy Grows Here

With the colony of Japanese beetle parasites, known as tiphia wasps, growing larger on the Gettysburg Battlefield, the State Department of Agriculture has collected a large number of beetle parasites to start new colonies in areas of heavy beetle infestation as the first step in its 1950 campaign to stamp out the beetle blight.

A colony of the parasites was established on the department's experimental farm near Harrisburg in 1934. It had grown large enough last year for the Bureau of Plant Industry to collect more than 2,000 mated female wasps to start fifteen new colonies in various parts of the state. It takes about 150 female wasps to start a new colony.

Destruction of Jap beetles by female tiphia wasps is swift and sure, according to Dr. Thomas L. Guyton, bureau director. When they are ready to deposit eggs they burrow into the ground where young and tender beetle grubs are now feeding on roots, getting ready to emerge in late June or early July.

Fined For Hauling
Coop On Highways

Harry R. Re, Gettysburg R. 4, paid a fine of $10 and costs to Justice of the Peace Robert F. Bell, Gettysburg R. 4, on a charge of operating a farm trailer loaded with a chicken coop over the legal limit for transport on the highway.

Ten-day notices were sent by Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder to the following, on charges filed by state police of the Gettysburg substation:

J. Wilmer Stoner, Orrtanna R. D., driving on the left side of the highway, Robert Spalding, Gettysburg R. 1, reckless driving, and refusing to comply with the order of an officer.

A ten-day notice was sent by Squire Snyder to Thomas M. Hess, Chambersburg street, on a charge of reckless driving filed by borough police.

CRACKDOWN ON SPECULATION IN COFFEE SOUGHT

Washington, June 9 (AP)—A Senate committee today asked a Justice Department crack-down on speculative trading in coffee.

The request was made by the Agriculture sub-committee, headed by Senator Gillette (D-Iowa), which has been investigating the sharp rise in coffee prices in recent months.

The group recommended that the attorney general and his anti-trust attorneys take these actions:

1. Seek "injunctive relief" against futures contracts now used for speculative trading in coffee on the New York coffee and sugar exchange unless these contracts are promptly revised.

2. Bring a "civil suit under the anti-trust laws" unless coffee stocks held in this country by Colombian and other foreign coffee interests are immediately disposed of in channels of trade.

3. That the attorney general of the United States investigate the details of the purchase of coffee by George V. Robbins, Maxwell House Division, General Foods Corporation, from the National Coffee Department of Brazil in the year 1948 to determine if any Federal laws have been violated.

4. That the Justice Department have a representative present at all future meetings of the special commission on coffee of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council, or any similar groups that meet here or in which the United States participates.

SEEK LOST NAVY BOMBER AT SEA

Norfolk, Va., June 9 (AP)—A Navy Grumman torpedo bomber with a crew of three is down in the Atlantic about 70 miles east of Cape Henry and a massive aerial and surface search is under way.

The TBM was on anti-submarine training maneuvers with three other craft from the Norfolk naval air station's composite squadron 24. At 12:25 a.m. (EST) the other planes radioed a submarine operating in the area that one had gone down. There was no fire. The sub, the USS Tigrone, forwarded the SOS to the air station.

Six ships, including five submarines and a submarine rescue vessel and 75 planes are conducting the search. The first planes were ordered to the rescue task at 1 a.m. and others have been roaring out to sea, 60 of them from the Oceana naval auxiliary air station alone, ever since the news was flashed ashore.

The three bombers which had been operating with the lost craft remained in the area as long as their fuel supplies held out, to direct searchers.

The Norfolk district Coast Guard dispatched the cutter Jougoult and three planes from the Elizabeth City, N. C. Coast Guard air station. In addition to the subs, a number of small Navy surface craft are assisting in the widespread search.

The merchant ship USS Ames Victory, near the scene of the disappearance, steamed to the area during the early morning.

Jap Police Push Action Against Reds

Tokyo, June 9 (AP)—Official Japanese action against Communists increased and broadened today as police pressed a drive in Osaka against party members and sympathizers.

Police action is most cases stemmed from a search for "documentary" evidence of an alleged Red inspired open letter to General MacArthur demanding a quick total peace, withdrawal of occupation forces and release of eight Nipponese convicted of beating five American soldiers in a leftist memorial demonstration in Tokyo.

Police action thus far has centered in Tokyo and Osaka, two Japanese cities in which Japanese Red activity has been noted. There was one indication though that the anti-Red drive might be broadened further. A national rural police official said the only Red arrests "at the moment" had been made in Tokyo and Osaka. He would not elaborate on what he meant "at the moment."

The whole situation came to a head earlier this week when General MacArthur ordered 41 Communist leaders—all the 24 members of the Politburo and 17 editorial policy makers of Akahata (Red Flag), the official Communist newspaper, purged from Japanese political life.

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP)—A five-week-old baby girl underwent a delicate chest operation today but doctors have little hope of saving her life. Shirley Irene Mead, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mead of Meadville, was born with a connection between her windpipe and stomach.

Without a special surgical tube which was placed in her windpipe after birth, Shirley would choke to death. The tube arrangement was described as only a temporary stop gap measure.

News Briefs

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was back in the political limelight today with at least one lawmaker suggesting the Columbia university president already has a presidential platform.

Senator Morse (R-Ore.) told a reporter that Eisenhower's warning against bleeding the economy by too big military outlays—coupled with his new criticism of government subsidies and unbalanced budgets—sounded to him "like an Eisenhower presidential platform."

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Movie writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo, who have been called Communists, were ordered today to start serving one-year sentences for contempt of Congress.

They also must pay $1,000 fines for refusing to tell the House Un-American Activities committee whether they ever were Reds.

There is a possibility their sentences can be reduced within the next two months.

Harrisburg, June 9 (AP)—Construction of the new 67-mile western extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike is moving so fast the road is now expected to be opened to traffic by October 1, 1951.

The Turnpike Commission reported today that contracts have been awarded or are pending for about 94 per cent of the western leg.

The western toll road arm will extend from the present western terminus of the turnpike at Irwin to a point on the Ohio border opposite Petersburg, O. The total cost is estimated at some $80,000,000.

Skytop, Pa., June 9 (AP)—The general manager of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers association today lauded the Atlantic and Pacific Food Stores for taking its side of a Federal anti-trust suit to the public through paid advertising.

CHARGE "LEAK" IN STATE DEPT. TO AMERASIA

New York, June 9 (AP)—A former executive officer of the wartime Office of Strategic Services charged today that a State Department "leak" siphoned top secret documents into the offices of Amerasia magazine.

O. C. Doering, Jr., now a partner in a New York city law firm, issued a statement which he said was an answer to criticism of OSS by an assistant attorney general regarding the Amerasia case.

"The discovery that Amerasia had obtained secret government papers was made through the alertness of a member of the OSS staff," Doering said. He said the staff member, who was not named, read an article in the magazine which "set forth the contents of a secret government document" he had prepared.

The OSS raid on the defunct publication's office followed, Doering said, and five copies of the published secret document were recovered.

Saying that there was no indication that anyone with OSS was responsible for any breach of security, Doering added: "On the contrary, they found clear indications that the principal cause of the leak was in the office of Amerasia they saw hundreds of other confidential, secret, and top secret army, navy, state and other government documents bearing a stamp showing that they had been obtained from the State Department."

Doering said Gen. William Donovan, director of the OSS, informed of the results of the investigation, roused Edward R. Stettinius—then secretary of state—out of bed and held a conference with the secretary "within the same hour."

Promised to Take Steps
Donovan also delivered to Stettinius all of the official documents recovered from the Amerasia office, Doering said. Doering said the secretary thanked Donovan and promised to take necessary steps.

"From that time on OSS was never informed of any steps that were being taken or consulted in regard to them," Doering said.

He said the chief of the criminal division of the Department of Justice, whose FBI also raided the publication's office, recently criticized OSS on the ground that "the OSS raid overthrew the whole prosecution."

AMPUTEE AND BRIDE ON TRIP

Jacksonville, Fla., June 9 (AP)—Quadruple amputee Jimmy Wilson, a radiant bride at his side, drove his auto toward a Canadian honeymoon today.

The 25-year-old ex-army sergeant who lost his hands and feet in a wartime bomber crash was wed last night to Dorothy Mortenson, his classroom sweetheart.

After a brief reception they headed for Canada with Wilson at the wheel. Afterward, they will go to Boulder, Colo., where the bridegroom will enter the University of Colorado Law college. Florida's climate is a bit too warm for a man with artificial limbs, he says.

The twilight ceremony was a gay affair with no overtones of the tragedy that crippled Wilson six years ago when his bomber smashed into a Vermont mountainside. The nuptial pair, smiling broadly, dispelled any tension or concern among the 300 guests.

Wilson walked to the altar with steady tread. They stood close as the Rev. W. R. Stevenson, Congregationalist minister, spoke the ritual. After both spoke "I will" in firm voices, Wilson with his silvered hook-hand received the ring from his best man and deftly placed it on the finger of his 23-year-old bride. Then they kissed.

It was the end of an uphill fight for Wilson. After his new limbs were fitted, he learned to write in long-hand, use a typewriter, comb his hair, shave, drive a car. At Jacksonville Junior college he met Miss Mortenson who encouraged him to see it through for a university diploma. He got it Monday—a BA degree in pre-law from the University of Florida.

8 WALLPAPER FIRMS ENJOINED

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP)—Eight large wallpaper manufacturers and their trade association have consented to a permanent injunction which will prevent them from price-fixing in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust law.

The injunction was issued by Federal District Judge George A. Welsh yesterday. Welsh said he was reluctant to sign it because it seemed to him the industry might be "hamstringing."

He said the provisions appeared so sweeping that the industry might be prevented from the scientific development of wallpaper "to the detriment of the public." If this occurs, Welsh said he will propose that the decree be modified.

Attorney Walter Mansfield said the defendants thought the decree "harsh, but it was the best we could do." He said they entered into a price-fixing agreement to protect the public from inflationary movements.

Defendant companies are the Enterprise Wallpaper Manufacturing Co., Pennsdale, Pa.; J. C. Eisenhart Wallpaper Co., Hanover, Pa.; York Wallpaper Co., York, Pa.; Atlas Mills, Inc., Coal City, Ill.; The Birge Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.; Imperial Paper and Color Co., Glens Falls, N. Y.; Prager Co., Worcester, Mass., and United Wallpaper Co., Inc., Chicago.

Welsh instructed the companies to cease further restrictions on new patterns and designs, limiting the quantities of wallpaper to be produced, fixing production periods, establishment of "arbitrary discounts and allowances" to customers and distribution of statistical information for use in illegal price-fixing.

June 23 and 24 will also be homecoming days for former residents. Samuel Jones is chairman of the dedication committee.

Seek Opportunities For Disabled Vets

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 9 (AP)—Delegates to the 20th annual state convention of Disabled American Veterans are expected to act today on a resolution aimed at opening up more civil service jobs to wounded ex-servicemen.

The resolution would permit the appointment of disabled veterans to help in the selection of civil service workers from among the ranks of service handicapped men and women.

PITTSBURGH HIT BY MILK STRIKE

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP)—A seven-county strike of milk and dairy company workers that cut off deliveries to 2,300,000 western Pennsylvanians began spreading today.

Pickets of the striking AFL Milk and Ice Cream Driver Salesmen and Dairy Employees, Local 205, shut down several plants of employers not involved in the wage dispute with the greater Pittsburgh Milk Dealers' association. These include two Armstrong county dairies and a Westmoreland county dairy.

Hard hit by the strike which got underway at 12:01 a.m. (Eastern Standard time) were dairy farmers throughout the area who were forced to seek inadequate outlets for milk normally sent to association member plants.

Mayor David L. Lawrence's 11th-hour attempt to halt the strike failed. A four-hour meeting of union and industry spokesmen broke up shortly after 1 a.m. (EDT), more than an hour after the strike deadline.

What may well be one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to be on hand tonight for the double-header softball league games which will find four of the top spot contenders in action against each other. Both games are key games in the tight race and are expected to attract a large number of fans.

The Moose went into sole possession of first place Thursday evening by upsetting the VFW in the opening game 9-4, thanks to a seven-run spurge in the fifth inning. Tom McGlaughlin, Moose hurler, permitted but one run until the last of the seventh when the Vets came up with three runs.

A new season scoring mark was set by the Glenn L. Bream Garage team in the nightcap as it slaughtered the Lentz Legion 30-5 in a game which was mercifully called at the end of five frames. The Garagemen scored in each inning and in the third and fourth frames tallied 11 runs each. Glenn Hankey and Steinberger each collected five hits in as many times at bat with the latter also pounding out a home-run.

RED SOX SMASH MODERN RECORD WITH 29 RUNS

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Stephens, Williams, Dropo and Doerr;

Shed a tear for the Browns—29-4. Fans will long remember the devastating 29-4 romp of June 8, 1950. How the muscular Boston Red Sox humbled the poor little boys from St. Louis. A few lines in the record books will note the route for posterity.

But hold, before you rush world series orders to the Red Sox front office! Boston still is third in the American league, four full games behind the leading New York Yankees. And precedent is all against them.

Not a single club that ever hung a scoring record in the book won a pennant. Not ever the Chicago team that scored 36 runs against Louisville, June 29, 1897, in a National league game. When the season was over, Chicago nestled in ninth place in a 12-team league.

Take the modern records, smashed by the Sox in yesterday's gallop. The majors' old modern (since 1900) mark was 28 runs scored by the St. Louis Cardinals on July 6, 1929, in the second game of a doubleheader with the Phillies. The Cards wound up fourth as the Cubs won the flag.

Or the American league mark of 27 set by Cleveland against Boston, July 7, 1923, in the first game of a doubleheader. Know where Cleveland wound up? Third place, some 16½ games behind the Yankees.

Seven Home Runs
Bobby Doerr hit three home runs and drove home eight runs in yesterday's slaughter. Ted Williams and Walt Dropo each had two. The total of seven homers was only one short of the record.

The Yankees, hardened to such news from Fenway, didn't let it bother them. They went out and hung another loss on the ambitious Detroit Tigers, blasting Art Houtteman in a seven-run inning to win 11-4 before 62,624. Now New York leads Detroit by 2½ games. Tommy Byrne did his usual job on Detroit for his 7th victory.

Houtteman struck disaster suddenly. He retired the first 13 batters in succession. With two out nobody on and two strikes on Phil Rizzuto, he had a one-hitter in the sixth. When he hit Rizzuto with a pitched ball, the Yanks were off.

Rizzuto's 58-game errorless string, an American league record, was broken when he fumbled Bob Swift's grounder in the sixth.

McKie Harris' ninth-inning game, scoring Johnny Ostrowski, gave Washington a 7-6 edge over Cleveland despite Al Rosen's bases-loaded homer in the fifth inning off Bob Kuzava.

Alex Kellner survived a shaky three-run first inning to pitch Philadelphia to a 5-4 nod over Chicago, his first win since May 6.

The National league race is all scrambled again with St. Louis and Brooklyn once more tied for first and the Phillies back in third place, a half game away.

Cards Blast Braves
St. Louis, taking a cue from the Red Sox, went on a run spree against Boston. After the Braves pushed home four in the first, the Cards came back with eight in their half and went on to an 18-6 triumph.

Each team collected 17 hits. Brooklyn lost to Pittsburgh, 4-3, as the Pirates broke a five-game losing streak. Cliff Chambers, Clyde McCullough and Ralph Kiner hit homers for the Bucs, who barely survived a ninth-inning Dodger rally. With two runs in the bases full and one out, reliever Bill Werle struck out Roy Campanella and retired pinch hitter Eddie Miksis on a fly.

Ken Raffensberger, crafty Cincinnati lefty, ruined the Phils' chances of taking over the league lead as he pitched the Reds to an 8-4 victory. Johnny Wyrostek, Cincy's best hurler, drove in four runs with a pair of doubles, helping Raffy cop No. 5.

The New York Giants won another one, 6-5, from Chicago, making it six straight. The sizzling Giants, setting a wicked pace on the road, are only 5½ games behind the leaders.

CANOEIST DROWNS

Harrisburg, June 9 (AP)—A Lebanon canoeist was drowned in the Swatara creek near here when his canoe upset in a race with a rowboat. The victim was Louis Basore, 25, who rented a summer cottage at nearby Jonestown, with his friend Albert D. Shultz, of Lebanon R. D. 3. State police said last night Shultz told them he jumped out of his rowboat but could not prevent Basore, a non-swimmer, from going under the surface.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE POWER OF CONCENTRATION

Having a worthy aim, and concentrating upon it, never being diverted, is one of the most important secrets for success. Want for success, in the thing most desired, so deeply and with such enthusiasm, that nothing can keep you from your objective.

The scientist never tires from repeated tries. Every time that he has a failure he knows that there is one less attempt to make. We must put our heart into a thing to make it an outstanding success. The thing that we should center our life upon should be the one thing we love most to do, regardless of material compensation.

It is far more advantageous, for one's peace of mind, to aim at something most desired, even though that aim is missed, than to aim at nothing and get something that you don't want! There is spiritual satisfaction at least in the former plan.
In America, as in no other country in the world, have men and women risen to high positions, from the humblest of occupations, solely through concentration upon the thing at hand, and then, step by step to something higher. There are examples all about us. None of us ever know the extent of our talents and ability until we concentrate upon bringing them to light.

The late W. C. Fields was a born comedian, but he got his first attention from the public by his remarkable ability to juggle. He would practice, concentrate, and work, until he would fall back upon his bed exhausted. He had to concentrate his mind upon his act every second, without exception.

Simon Bolivar, South America's great "George Washington," known by all today as "The Liberator," determined while upon a European visit to return to his native land of Venezuela and free his people of the Spanish yoke. To do so he gave up friends and fortune, but he never relaxed until he had won! Today he is the great hero of half a continent and the inspiration behind the freedom of all South America, from Spanish rule.

My early friend, Bion J. Arnold, once told me that he wanted success to the point where "it hurt." He became one of the greatest engineers of America. Concentration did it. It will do wonders for anyone!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject, "The Tried and True."

NEW DEMAND FOR REOPENING AMERASIA CASE

Washington, June 9 (AP)—A demand for still another Congressional inquiry into the hotly disputed 1945 Amerasia case came today from Senator Capehart (R-Ind.). He blasted Justice Department handling of the wartime secret documents episode.
Capehart spoke out as:

1. A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee already investigating the case summoned to a closed session a witness who contends the episode "constituted a threat to national security in time of war." The witness is Archibald Van Beuren, one-time security officer of the old office of Strategic Services (OSS).

2. A high official source in New York confirmed that a grand jury there is looking into the Amerasia case, which involved theft of hundreds of confidential government papers. Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.)
said yesterday he had been told a Federal panel was studying the case.

Deny Clark Rumor
3. Reports circulated that Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark might be called to testify at the current Senate inquiry. However, a member of the investigation committee, who asked not to be named, said that in his discussion of the case with the group the idea of summoning Clark "never has been given a moment's thought." Clark was head of the Justice Department's criminal division when the case broke five years ago.

4. FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover told Congress in testimony made public last night: "There is a larger volume of subversive activities (in the United States) than existed in any period during the last world war."

Charges by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) that there are a lot of Communist and Red sympathizers in the State Department touched off the Senate inquiry which has been running since last March. McCarthy has termed the Amerasia case the key to a "Red network" in the State Department.

Amerasia was the name of a magazine, now defunct, on Far Eastern affairs. Raids by the FBI and the OSS in 1945 turned up more than 900 secret government documents in the publication's New York office and elsewhere.

INCUMBENTS SUCCESSFUL IN INITIAL TESTS

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Voters in the 13 state primaries held today have been unusually easy on the "ins."

Candidates have already been chosen for 173 House seats—and not a single incumbent has tasted defeat.

And of 11 Senate seats involved in 10 states, only two sitting members—Pepper (D-Fla.) and Gurney (R-S. D.)—have lost out, both to incumbent representatives. A third, Senator Graham (D-N.C.), faces a run-off June 24.

What does it mean? One may jump to the conclusion that it augurs well for the party in power in November; that apparent satisfaction with the present legislative personnel indicates the Democrats will easily retain control of both branches.

There's a difference of opinion about this.
While keeping an open mind, Victor Hunt Harding, executive secretary of the House Democratic campaign committee, told a reporter it certainly indicates one of two things —there is no serious dissatisfaction inside party ranks with incumbents in either party, or the people are indifferent.

Seem To Be Satisfied
In either event, he feels it points to Democratic retention of control of both Houses in the next Congress, despite the traditional pull-away from the party in power in non-Presidential election years.

Rep. Martin (Mass.), House Republican floor leader, agrees that the results to date show the voters seem satisfied with their representatives.

But he said in an interview this does not necessarily mean the present line-ups of 259 Democrats and 170 Republicans in the House and 94 Democrats and 42 Republicans in the Senate will be anywhere near the same next January.

He said the vote will be larger in November and national issues—lacking in primary battles to date—will be stressed in the post-primary campaigns.

Hold Little Hope For Lost Airmen

London, June 9 (AP)—Hope dimmed today for the safety of four airmen missing since their flaming B-29 bomber dove into the North Sea Wednesday. Three others died in the crash and four survived.

Hopes had risen earlier today when a dinghy with two men aboard was reported sighted off the Norfolk village of Winterton. Rescue ships failed to find it, however.

All day yesterday American and British planes and surface craft combed the crash area, 23 miles off Great Yarmouth on England's Norfolk coast.

The survivors, who were plucked from the icy waters of the North Sea by rescue craft, still are under treatment in hospitals.

The 11 airmen bailed out of the Superfortress when one of its engines caught fire at 500 feet, during a gunnery flight.

OIL OFFICIAL EXPLAINS COAL MINE LAYOFFS

Washington, June 9 (AP)—An oil industry official said today that job layoffs in the coal mines are primarily due to factors other than imports of foreign oil.

The official, Charles L. Harding, director of Socony-Vacuum Oil company, gave his arguments to a Senate Labor subcommittee.

The committee is looking into protests from the coal industry that it is being hurt by competition from foreign oil. Rep. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) has estimated that nearly 18,000 soft coal miners have lost their jobs since 1949.

Long-Standing Rivalry

Oil spokesman Harding commented, in a statement prepared for the committee: "The competition between coal and oil is one of long-standing. The advantage for the time being appears to be on the side of oil, with the volume of coal consumption declining as compared to the level of industrial activity.
There have been many reasons other than oil imports which have accounted for this trend.

"A substantial portion of the oil substituted for coal has consisted of products which are not imported.
In 1949, for example, the increased use of Diesel engines by our railroads was directly responsible for a 33 million ton reduction in the consumption of bituminous coal.

Cites Many Factors

"Anthracite coal, too, has failed to obtain its share of an expanded home-heating market, with many homeowners showing a preference for light heating oil, a product not imported.

"Among industrial users there has been an important replacement of coal by natural gas.

"Labor stoppages in the coal industry, the need for allocating dwindling coal supplies, mounting costs of operation; technological advances, the convenience and efficiency of oil, and a host of their considerations have been contributing factors."

As for coal mine shutdowns, Harding said: "The information which reaches me is that most of the mine shutdowns in recent months have been marginal high-cost operations which had had a long history of 'ups' and 'downs' and some of which were commenced

Harmonious GOP Meeting Forecast

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP)—State Republican bigwigs here for the reorganization meeting of the state GOP committee tomorrow say the session will be harmonious and State Senator M. Harvey Taylor will be persuaded to stay on as chairman.

An advance guard arrived yesterday and gossip about the meeting began almost at once.

Gov. James H. Duff and former Judge John S. Fine, the party's senatorial and gubernatorial candidates respectively, talked over the chairmanship and reorganization last night.

Taylor, state Senator from Dauphin county, has expressed a desire to retire even though both Duff and Fine have urged him to accept one more term as chairman, at least until after the November election when they oppose U. S. Senator Francis Myers and Richardson Dil-worth.

Other candidates for the chairmanship are William J. Hamilton.

as recently as 1949 when the three-day work ordered by the United Mine workers created an artificial shortage of coal."

primary, and Kenneth F. Kressler, head of the Northampton county Republican committee.

Harrisburg, June 9 (AP)—Home-grown strawberries will be in fairly good supply in Pennsylvania during the remainder of June, the state Agriculture Department says. The department reported yesterday that prospects for a good berry crop in Erie county are bright. In southeastern counties, the department said, berries have set well despite fears by many growers early this month that rot might cut production unless warm and dry weather should prevail.

WIDOW HELD

FOR HOMICIDE

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP)—Mrs. Julia Vitacolonna who says she slept at the side of her husband when he was fatally shot six times is being held without bail for grand jury action on a homicide charge.

Assistant District Attorney James W. Tracey, Jr., announced today two bills of indictment accusing Mrs. Vitacolonna of murder and manslaughter in the death of her husband which will be presented before the grand jury as soon as they can be prepared.

Coroner Joseph Ominsky ordered her held yesterday. She has testified she heard none of the six shots which killed her husband, Felix, as he lay in his bed last February 26 at his Roxborough home.

Ominsky in a surprise move told Mrs. Vitacolonna:

"You know, I just can't understand why you didn't hear the shots that killed your husband. I know they could have been heard, because we tried it."

Ominsky said evidence also has been found that a neighbor heard Mrs. Vitacolonna say, "You shot him." Since the slaying was committed in absolute darkness, the killer must have been familiar with the bedroom and Mrs. Vitacolonna must have recognized him and known him, Ominsky said.

He termed her "one of the persons responsible" for the crime.

Her counsel was unable to obtain her release on bail. They procured a writ of habeas corpus returnable a week from today.

ZEPHANIAH CALLS TO REPENTANCE

Zephaniah 1:12-18; 3:1-5, 16-20
Memory selection: Seek ye the Lord, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought His judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the Lord's anger. Zephaniah 2:3.
The sins of a nation call usually be traced to one thing—rebellion against God. Sometimes national pride is a detriment instead of a help, for in peace people become complacent; in war, either rebellious or repentant. It often takes a catastrophe to awaken the public mind.

Zephaniah, the gloomiest prophet of all, is also the most difficult to understand. His predictions that Judah was doomed and that the Day of Jehovah was near at hand reflect two conditions: the idolatrous and skeptical state of the people and impending invasion. The Scythian hordes, fierce horsemen who had been spreading terror and ruin all over Asia, were threatening from the north. The dreaded invasion brought forth Zephaniah's prophecy of a terrible punishment on the people. He directed his message especially to Jerusalem. His prophecy is placed during the reign of Josiah probably between 626-621 B. C.

Prophet And Reformer

Both Zephaniah and Jeremiah were contemporaries of King Josiah, the reformer. The young king started a great reform and for a while the people returned to the worship of Jehovah. But Jerusalem was still wicked and rebellious which prompted Zephaniah's stern charges.

One writer says, "For so young a man the vision of Zephaniah seems strangely dark and final." There is absolutely no semblance of hope in his book and it differs greatly from Hosea and Micah. He is a bitter realist, seeing only a great national crisis—siege, famine, destruction and captivity. He showed no interest in the practical reforms of Josiah. All he could see was impending invasion and the Day of the Lord when Jehovah would punish the wicked and unbelieving. Only the meek and righteous would survive.

Judgment Near

Zephaniah was an austere prophet. His Day of the Lord became the Last Day which tinged his prophecy with Apocalypse. His message insists on basic elements of morality and religion—faith in God's mercy and justice. Why did Zephaniah not appeal to the people to change their sinful and careless ways? Because he stood too near to the final catastrophe. To him the time for pleading was past.

So, as the prophet presents this severe, unrelieved picture of Israel "as poor and humble folk," he emphasizes (Please Turn to Page 6)

The lad in this picture has been into some kind of mischief, and his dad has called him "on the carpet." His drooping head and downward gaze suggest a consciousness of wrongdoing.

These are always tense moments in parent and child relations, because they involve a meeting of personalities in a situation which might easily serve to strengthen or weaken the parental tie.

This is no occasion for parental anger, arrogance, or bluster. The situation calls for a sympathetic understanding, a calm appraisal, and good judgment based on the moral and spiritual elements in human conduct.

Parents need the wisdom of God and spiritual guidance in dealing with the behavior problems of their children. Mistakes made in these circumstances often lead to unfortunate results.

The counsel of the Church and the inspiration of the Scriptures is offered to every parent who seeks divine guidance in meeting the responsibilities of parenthood.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Chapter 25

Andrew had put off his sailing for a month, to Hamlyn's annoyance and Sydney Blount's delight. He did not go to see Katherine, although he sent her flowers and books and candy, and he telephoned Heather and occasionally took her out to dinner so they could discuss Katherine and report progress. The Murrys would not accept any payment for their hospitality or nursing, though Andrew appealed to Dr. Murray's Scots sense of what was and was not correct, insisted on her accepting professional fees. Then one day, he had a letter from Mr. Hamlyn. This was an unusual occurrence. Mr. Hamlyn was much more likely to ring one up on the Transatlantic telephone in the middle of the night than to find time to dictate a letter, much less to write one himself, from his club in New York.

It started by saying he would be glad to see Andrew and was disappointed that he had had to postpone his sailing. There was an undercurrent of worry that he did not put into words, beyond a vague hint that all was not going well with "Devil-May-Care." William Brody was not, apparently, popular in Hollywood, particularly with the technicians and camera crew. Andrew smiled. There was a lot of money sunk in the picture and as William Hamlyn went on nervously, and they couldn't risk a failure. It would almost be better to cut their loss, put in a well-known star with a reliable name, and as William went on, contract, put him back into smaller parts until he learned more about picture technique. This would be an expensive way of teaching him sense, but it was all they could do. He wasn't responsive to direction, but still, they were having a conference, and perhaps he could be made to understand all this. He hoped so, because failure was not a thing Magda understood. That was all about William. Andrew had a clear picture of William unhappy in strange surroundings, and in his unhappiness behaving like a spoiled child, uncooperative, tiresomely spectacular, knowing he was financially safe for the next three years, unless World-Wide could irritate him into breaking his contract.

The next part of the letter caught Andrew's attention. He read it through, then read it again, then laid it down, his clever face suddenly still and thoughtful. "I am now in a position to do something for Katherine Best," Mr. Hamlyn began. After selling his company such an unreliable thoroughbred as William, he must be careful before importing another youngster from England—and from Broadway. But the fact was that while he had been in Paris earlier in the summer, he had bought the stage and screen rights of a play which had been running there. It was practically the same theme as Prunella, the eternal forgiveness and compassion of love, but it was not, as Mr. Hamlyn put it bluntly, "in fancy dress." It was a story of the ateliers, and the girl's part would fit Katherine like a glove. He had managed to get an excellent translation by a brilliant young American author. He would like to put it on in one of the smaller theaters in New York, and then, if she had the success he felt sure she would, he could begin his sales talk to the company. He was sending the script of the play by air, and he would like Andrew to let Morton read it. He knew, of course, that to drag Morton away from the Broadway was like unfastening a limpet, but he had read that L. M. had been producing in Dublin lately. It would be well worth Morton's while financially, and he would be back in England in the early spring, in ample time to prepare for his Broadway season. Andrew might approach him on the matter.

Andrew drew a deep breath. There was so much in the letter, and so much behind it, that he was not quite sure how to move. The very fact that Mr. Hamlyn wanted to back his first judgment so far as Katherine was concerned suggested that Magda was already tiring of her hastily bought bargain. If Magda did not care whether Katherine were in the States or not, it meant that she did not care whether William were there or not. Unless Mr. Hamlyn, writing this in the masculine fastness of his New York club, had not mentioned the matter to his daughter.

A part in a New York production. It might be the saving of Katherine. It might be her destruction. It might mean that she would find that she had grown beyond and above that first passion. It might mean that he was taking her back to William again. Being Andrew, the minute he thought of this he put his hand out to the telephone and put a call through to Heather Murray, who had reported yesterday that Katherine was better, eating like a good child, going out, gaining a little more weight and color, but still curiously apathetic about both her life and her work.

When he arrived at the flat, Katherine herself came to the door to let him in, and he felt a queer sense of triumph at seeing her looking so much better. "Heather's out," she said. "Mr. Blount rank her up and asked her to go along and see him. I believe he has a part for her."

"I believe he has, too," admitted Andrew, smiling. "I'll want to know why if he hasn't. Surprising, the influence you have over people when you're leaving them. I hope I'm going to have some influence over you."

She looked at him with a little guarded sense of awareness as though she suspected some kind of trap. He again had the little feeling of triumph; this sensitivity to every infection was so much a part of the normal Katherine. He went up to her and took her by the shoulders, turning her round, admiring her as he might have some work of art he had created himself.

"You look wonderful!" Dr. Murray and Heather have done a wonderful job."

"They're nice," she said quickly. "And you are, too. I can't begin to say how grateful I am. I thought it was just natural unhappiness. I didn't think I was ill."

"And now you're quite well. Even a little brown."

"That's from being out in the air." "Well, let's go out now; then I can talk as we're walking. Let's go over the river into the park."

Chapter 26

"I shall miss these open spaces," said Andrew, "these green spaces. That's the swell part about London; it's so unexpected. There you have the power station and the big gasometer and the railway sidings, and the gray shabby streets of Battersea, and then in the middle of it, this lovely park."

"You're going soon?" she said.

"Yes. In two week's time. Will you miss me?"

She colored and hesitated, and he laughed, at himself, and at her. "Oh, sweet and honest Kate," he said.

"How can you miss me? You hardly know me. I didn't mean to put you on the spot."

"I don't know why you should be so nice to me."

"You don't?" His eyes were on her face, and she flushed again, and said, "Yes, I suppose I do. But I can't understand it at all."

"You don't have to worry about it. Let's say, I feel responsible for you. If I hadn't told you to read poetry, you wouldn't have got the job with Morton. You would have gone back to Wardham, and become a junior typist."

"Perhaps that might have been the best thing, after all."

He said quickly, "You don't really believe that?"

"I don't quite know what to believe about myself," she said in a low voice. "I was sure about acting until I was ill, until William—." She suddenly plunged on, as though determined not to avoid the pricking pain of speaking his name—"until William married that girl. Then I felt as though I couldn't do it any more, and now I'm afraid of starting again."

They had reached the lake, and Andrew took her arm and took her into the little cafe at the water's edge and ordered two cups of tea.

"Look," he said, "it's not like you to be apathetic. You were always so alive to everything, especially to lovely words."

She raised her head sharply at that, like a hunting dog sharp on the scent. She did not look at him.

"You had no experience, old Morton believed in you, and for some reason of his own grumbled you through the first season."

"He likes me. He tried to stop me from thinking about William."

"You know there's only one thing that Morton likes, don't you? If you'd had nothing to give him, you think he would have had the slightest interest in whether you broke your heart or not?"

The rusty hair swung as she shook her head silently, not daring to speak.

"Well then, he gave you too much to digest. You, who had never played anything in your life, this year were playing leading parts at the rate of one every two weeks. William or not, you'd have broken down."

She looked up eagerly. "Do you think so?"

"I know Morton was worried about you, but his cure for indigestion is more food, attractive, difficult, indigestible food. He gave you Prunella, and then when he knew William was leaving, he pushed parts into your unprepared young brain like a thrush pushing juicy worms into its young. When you're an old actress, queen of the English and New York stage, you'll see I'm right. You never rested, you were always swimming, walking, playing tennis, you didn't eat properly. You cooked for William and stayed up half the night with him."

She rose suddenly and went to the water's edge, the memory of those summer nights unbearably clear and dear. "What's all this leading up to, Mr. Nolan?" she asked.

"It's leading up to the fact that Mr. Hamlyn was impressed with Prunella. He wants you to play a similar part in New York."

She turned around, white and apprehensive.

He went over to her, shaking her arm gently. "Good heavens! When will you folks over here realize that the States is as big as Europe? William will be in Hollywood, thousands of miles away."

"Yes. Of course, I'd forgotten."

"Well, what do you say?" He waited, hung upon a moment of frantic suspense.

She said slowly, "I'll think about it."

TRUMAN URGES CONTINUANCE OF MARSHALL PLAN

Columbia, Mo., June 9 (AP)—President Truman declared today that post-Marshall plan abandonment of aid to western Europe would be disastrous to peace.

In a world "full of dangers," he declared, the United States must continue its contributions to free nations lest "the Communists move in."

He made it clear in an address prepared for graduation exercises of the University of Missouri that he is convinced "our vital national interest in a healthy world economy" will not end when Marshall Plan aid stops in 1952.

"You hear a lot of talk these days to the effect that the world is full of dangers, and that our civilization is heading straight for disaster," the President asserted.

"Of course, the world is full of dangers—the world has always been full of dangers, for people in every country and at every period of history."

"Greater Heights"

But in spite of these dangers, he said, "our civilization need not wind up in disaster."

"It can go on to greater heights. Those who are frightened and dismayed do not have faith that men will use scientific advances for good ends. They see only the dangers in the world—not the opportunities."

Mr. Truman's speech was part of a program including his being awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree and a membership key in Phi Beta Kappa, the scholarship society.

He was to return to St. Louis this afternoon for a reunion of the 35th division in which he served in the First World War.

The President's speech added up to an implied warning to Russia that the emotions stirred up in this country by foreign policy debates do not indicate weakness in a democracy. He explained:

"Sign of Strength"

"The democratic process is not always easy. It involves us in great public debates. Emotions are aroused and feelings run high."

"But when the shouting is ended and the decision is taken, the resulting choice rests on the solid foundation of the common wisdom of the people."

"Dictators and tyrants, who thought our political debates indicated indecision and weakness, have found to their dismay that, instead, those debates are a source of wisdom and a sign of strength."

He cited American foreign aid to the democracies after the last war when it "became clear that one nation did not want to help world recovery."

Obviously speaking of Soviet Russia, he continued:

"Instead, that nation wished to prolong and intensify the misery of others, so that it could gain domination over them. The plain intent of that nation was to overthrow the tradition of freedom which is shared by our country and many others."

He said the United States chose to work with other countries to build up strength to withstand aggression rather than to abandon the rest of the free world and "try to become strong enough all by ourselves."

The program, Mr. Truman said, calls for a community of nations which can resist communism whether its aggression takes the form of "internal subversion or external attack."

THINGS OF THE SOIL

THE GETTYSBURG TIMES AGRICULTURE EDITOR
Box 1528, Washington 13, D. C.

Systematic roguing to keep brambles—raspberries, blackberries, dewberries and Boysenberries—free from certain diseases and insect enemies is often the most important step in successful care of these crops. To many beginners and even a few experienced gardeners this term may be new. However, the practice is sound and necessary, particularly from this time of the year until plants shed their leaves.

Recently a reader sent to the editor several specimens of abnormal stem "swellings" he had discovered on his red raspberries and Boysenberries. Examination showed they were galls, an extremely troublesome bacterial disease sometimes common on these two brambles and also on blackberries. In most cases only the crowns and main roots are affected, yet occasionally galls occur quite high on the stems. The common name of the disease is Crown Gall.

Here is a prominent example of where roguing is the only means of combat. All plants with galls on the stems should be cut out and burned. The cut should be made at least a few inches below the swelling, with the knife dipped in a strong solution of permanganate of potash after each cut. If galls occur on the crowns or main roots, the entire plant should be removed and burned.

Leaf curl is a virus disease which causes leaves to curl downward and inward, with the younger leaves most susceptible. Raspberries are usually the only brambles affected, although blackberry and dewberry plants are occasionally infected. The virus is spread from diseased to healthy plants by a small plant aphid. Rogue out and burn all plants showing symptoms. Do this as early in the season as possible before aphids have time to disseminate the virus widely. Stress eradication of leaf curl particularly in one-year-old red raspberry plantings.

Mosaic is somewhat similar in symptoms to leaf curl. It, too, is a virus disease, causing leaves to pucker and develop light and dark green colorings, with badly stricken plants dwarfed. Again, roguing out and burning all affected plants at the first signs of infection is the only safe and even partially effective means of control.

Orange rust may attack any bramble fruits, although no cases of it on red raspberries has ever been reported. In many instances the disease spreads from wild blackberries growing near the field or garden where cultivated brambles grow. Cutting all domesticated and wild plants down as soon as rust is seen on them is advised. It is not necessary to burn them unless other diseases are present.

Two outstanding bramble fruit insect enemies warrant careful roguing to aid their control—the raspberry cane borer and the red-necked cane borer. The former causes cane tips to wilt from punctures made around the cane immediately below the place where the female has deposited her egg in soft tissue. Cutting all wilting canes off below the visible circle of punctures and burning it destroys the egg and thereby prevents propagation. Frequent inspecting of plants throughout the growing season is a wise investment of time and labor in combating this pest.

The red-necked cane borer causes wilting of the entire cane. This is explained by the fact that the insect's attack occurs at or near the crown. Cut out and burn all affected canes. Prompt pruning of the old or bearing canes soon after fruit harvest is usually sufficient to keep this pest in check.

SEASONAL POULTRY NOTES

Successful poultrymen recognize the importance of mentioning frequently at this time of the year two soundly established facts about keeping roosters with laying hens. They are: (1) If home-produced eggs are used for hatching purposes, remove the male birds and sell them as soon as the hatching season ends; (2) If home-produced eggs are not wanted for hatching purposes, keep no male birds at all. In other words, produce fertile eggs only for hatching; produce only infertile eggs for food purposes.

On this important point of poultry keeping we are reminded of a little printed sign a midwest poultry farmer keeps on his poultry house door—"Only infertile eggs are fit to eat—that's the kind we produce here."

If cannibalism breaks out, even this late in the spring, give chicks more brooder house room, furnish them grass and clover clippings fresh daily in woven wire containers suspended along the walls, add more bone meal, tankage or other animal matter, along with a little more salt, to the mash, darken the room for a few days if the outbreak continues.

One of the important steps in preventing cannibalism as well as bringing more contentment to the brood is to remove male birds as early as sex can be determined. These can be rushed to market condition as broilers while the pullets are brought along toward next year's status as layers.

When chicks reach the age of 8 weeks, gradually change them to a good commercial growing mash.

preferably kept before them all the time in sanitary hoppers. And by the time they reach this age they should be accustomed to a grain mixture also kept before them.

Laying hens on range in hot weather must have easily accessible shade. Too, fresh water should be kept available in a comfortable shade, else hens will not consume as much water as they need. Emergency shade may be grown by planting two or three rows of sunflowers along the south side of the range, with a few clumps along the west side for afternoon shade. The seed heads make excellent poultry feed in winter or may be crushed for feeding quail or other birds.

Form and practice the profitable habit of gathering eggs at least three times a day in hot weather and store them in a room where the temperature is between 45 and 60 degrees F until they cool. It is always wise to remember that the processes of incubation start at 68 degrees F.

Confine layers to the house when range and yards are muddy.

Do not punish broody hens. But as soon as they give evidence of intending or wanting to raise a family of their own, shut them up in a comfortably ventilated "broody coop" for a few days or until their temperamental "clucking" turns to snatches of song.

No poultryman can afford to market cracked, dirty or small-and-large eggs. Save inferior grades (cracked and unusually small) for home consumption and grade all marketable eggs properly. Proper grading means uniformity in size, shape and color.

Always pack eggs so they rest with the pointed end down and large end up.

Start or continue culling operations by observing hens that slow down production earliest.

Keep alert to detect lice and mites.

The National Geographic Society says the highest postoffice in the U. S. is at Trail Ridge, Colo., 11,797 feet.

USES TALCUM ON WEAK HEART

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP)—Talcum powder has been blown onto weakened heart muscles to create a stimulating irritation, says a New York surgeon.

Dr. Samuel Thompson, associate professor of surgery at the New York medical college and professor of thoracic surgery at the Flower-Fifth Avenue hospital, New York, described the technique Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Jefferson Medical College Alumni association.

He said the new method was developed to rehabilitate persons stricken with coronary occlusions—the closing of a branch of the arteries supplying the heart.

Of 42 patients operated on by his staff, Dr. Thompson reported, "27 claim they are leading normal lives."

After slitting the pericardial sac, encasing the heart, Dr. Thompson explained, talcum powder is injected into the sac by blowing.

The talcum irritates the area and creates a new blood supply, he said. The talcum powder, he said, remained in the sac for years without undergoing any change.

An anagram which reads the same backward and forward is called a palindrome. A classic example is "Madam, I'm Adam." The U. S. poultry industry is rated as a $3,500,000,000 business.

HONOR PHONE OPERATOR FOR HEROIC WORK

Bedford, Pa., June 9 (P)—Townsmen from nearby Hyndman gathered Thursday to honor the telephone operator heroine who stayed on duty while the community burned down around her.

Pretty, 22-year-old Mrs. Helen Turner received the telephone industry's greatest honor at an affair scheduled for a resort hotel luncheon. She received a silver medal and $500 in cash.

Mrs. Turner was on duty at Hyndman's switchboard last Christmas when a million dollar fire wiped out the southern Pennsylvania community's business section.

While flames cracked within 50 feet of her switchboard, Mrs. Turner kept on the job, using flashlight to see after the lights failed.

She stayed on her post 22 consecutive hours, summoning fire departments, ambulances and doctors and relaying emergency messages.

The medal is given to heroic telephone company workers. It is made from a fund set up 30 years ago in memory of Theodore N. Vail, former president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

Mrs. Turner is not an employee of the A. T. & T. She works for the United Telephone company of Pennsylvania, an independent.

SAYS REDS BALK ARMS RACE CUT

Philadelphia, June 9 (P)—Senator McMahon (D-Conn.) says the Soviet iron curtain is preventing a free exchange of information that could halt the present armament race and turn atomic energy to worldwide peacetime uses.

The chairman of the joint Congressional committee on atomic energy told the world affairs council Wednesday that he considers the Russian iron curtain a greater threat to mankind than the atom bomb.

The current cold war would end, he said, if it were possible for the Russian people to learn what America is really like and to learn of America's sincere desire for peace.

"What transpires in the minds of men," McMahon said, "is a thousand times more vital than what transpires in the nucleus of the atom."

The Connecticut senator said all Americans should make an all-out effort for a peaceful end of the cold war, but warned the U. S. must remain strong from a military standpoint until Russia makes her intentions plain.

Murder Case May Reach Jury's Hands

Norristown, Pa., June 9 (P)—The trial of Robert Sherman, 21-year-old short order cook charged with murder, is expected to go to the jury late today.

The defense wound up its case yesterday by placing Sherman and his foster mother, Mrs. Elsie Robinson, on the stand.

Sherman testified he strangled David R. Clement at the Merion Cricket club last February 13 but that it was accidental. "I never had any intention to kill Clement or to rob him," he told the jury of eight men and four women.

Sherman said he and Clement were in a heated argument over the fact that he had brought Porter Royal Stone, 24-year-old Navy petty officer, with him to Clement's room.

The room was in the employees' dormitory of the club at Haverford, Pa., where Clement, member of a prominent Lowell, Mass., family, was employed as a bellhop while taking graduate work at the University of Pennsylvania.

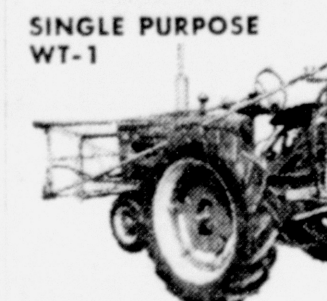

A hollow rubber ball cut in two, punctured and shoved over the handle of a paint brush, will prevent paint drippings from coozing back.

FAMILY TREAT. They'll all have fun in this roomy 4-door Sedan with generous luggage space for trips. Shown here is the SPECIAL. Some body type available also in the SUPER series.

Look at the FUN you're missing!

SURE, we know—a car is a "necessity" these days. A modern family "couldn't" get along without one." Or so you tell yourself.

Come, come, sir! We know, and so do you, the real reason you got the new-car fever—and the kind of car you are hankering for.

You want a car with some fun in it, don't you?

A car you'll get a big bang out of every time you see it parked in front of your house—every time you slip into its front seat—every sweet and easy mile you travel in it.

Well, come see what this beauty does for you.

How the doors swing open in warm welcome at a thumb touch on a button. How the broad seats invite you to take it easy. How the big straight-eight under the bonnet snaps into purring life at your toe-touch.

And then note—

How smoothly you slip away from the curb—especially when Dynaflo* is handling the power transmission.

How firm and steady the whole car feels. How it holds on curves, free of "heel-over" and sway. How each coil-sprung wheel quicksteps over bumps and rough spots that mean jounce and jiggle on most cars—how buoyantly road-free a Buick is.

*Dynaflo Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

FOUR-WAY FOREFRONT

This rugged front end (1) sets the style note, (2) saves on repair costs — vertical bars are individually replaceable, (3) avoids "locking horns," (4) makes parking and garaging easier.

Fun? You bet it's fun—too much fun to miss.

And there's no reason to miss it, really, for this strapping traveler is priced under many sixes. Starts at figures just an easy step above the so-called Lowest Price cars.

What's keeping you from trying one, when the nearest Buick dealer is ready to demonstrate without obligation any time you want to call on him.

Only Buick has Dynaflo—
and with it goes:

HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.)
• NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, taper-through fenders, "double bubble" taillights • WIDE-ANGLE VISIBILITY, close-up road view both forward and back • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steady torque-tube • WIDE ARRAY OF MODELS with Body by Fisher.
